Summer's Over, Time for Show and Tell

Steve Hillerman and Joyce McCullough - October 2015

It's a Show and Tell for the September 19th meeting. You may remember President Matt Overton's challenge last June to make something you've never done, or use a technique you haven't used before. Or you may have a HOW piece that you've worked on and are now ready to show. Bottom line- we want to see what you've been doing!

There is still a bit of planning left to do for the remainder of the year, starting in October with a mini HOW. Since people are still talking about Linford Sine's skew mini HOW, we are putting out the call for other volunteers to share gadgets and gizmos they like to use in turning. Maybe its a chuck, a tool, or jig; bring your ideas to the next meeting and talk to Matt. Your participation in these popular meetings is greatly appreciated!

Almost ready for announcement, Matt has been working hard to schedule Jakob Weissflog for a special workshop on November 8th. More details on this to come. We currently have tool maker and instructor, Stuart Batty, on deck for November 21st. The theme for the Pollyanna Exchange, part of our December 19th Holiday Meeting, has been announced: "Ornaments." Take this as liberally as you would like, but please participate, and have some fun!
